Willing, Able, Ready

PRESIDENT’S REPORT

Our annual reunion will take place this first week of September in Hampton, Virginia. Much work goes into making a reunion happen so I do hope you will all make a big effort to attend. Surprisingly our attendance numbers have been increasing, not decreasing as we had expected, so that is good news indeed. With this in mind, I think we should name George Anderson our new Recruitment Officer, or perhaps have him just invite us all to his next family reunion.

Louise Terrell has been doing an amazing job gathering and preparing materials for the time capsule. We currently have a small but growing list of items which are quite diverse. In addition to photographs and personal stories, we have a commitment from three authors to donate signed copies of their manuscripts. Bob Drury and Tom Clavin will be giving us an advanced copy of their book about ‘Old 666’. Clint Hayes will be sending a signed hard copy of his screen play “Above and Beyond”.

There is still time, so please send in your item, photo or story, or even your favorite book, whatever speaks to you about your time in the 43rd or what you know of that time in history.

At this reunion we have two exciting events planned in addition to our time capsule. One is a trip to the Hampton Air & Space Museum, which houses a very interactive collection of aviation simulators, radio and communication displays, and aircraft cut outs that allow you to feel like you are “really there”. We will have unlimited access to all displays as well as to all IMAX theaters. There will be several presentations customized for our group and lunch will be served.

The second event will be a personally guided tour of NASA by Astronaut Charles Camarda; we have a fee associated with this event only due to the fact that we will be providing transportation. If this changes, we will gladly issue refunds. Charles Camarda, being a personal friend of our member George Anderson, has graciously offered to not only show us around but to tell us all about his experience regarding reentry. I suspect his aviation adventures will be quite a bit different than yours!

Senator Carl Levin, of Michigan is also on our schedule to address the group. He too is a personal friend of one of our members, Michael La Vean, our Assistant Historian. Senator Levin was elected to the Senate in 1978 and most notably served as the PRESIDENT'S REPORT (CONT’D)

Chairman of the US Senate Armed Services Committee. He retired in 2015 after being in public office since 1977.

As you continue with this newsletter, you will read further about these individuals and our planned reunion events. You will find the Reunion Registration Form, hotel reservation information and driving directions in the back of the newsletter. I truly hope you can join us!

We are delighted to say a very Happy 100th Birthday to Art Mulligan. This is a milestone that should not go unremarked and we would love to share a photo in a future newsletter if anyone has one!

And sadly I will end with saying goodbye to Garrett Minnick. Garrett passed away recently just shy of his 100th birthday. Garrett served as a medic during WWII with the 64th Squadron. He and his family were very active at the reunions with Garrett always being ready with an amusing story and a salute. It was a special treat that Garrett was kissed by a General last year after receiving a medal, something he never could have imagined. Our deepest condolences to Garrett’s family.

FROM OUR VETERANS

Jim Cherkauer, 65th Squadron, wrote that he enjoyed the last newsletter and that, with some increased effort on my part, I might make an acceptable Secretary/Editor for the Association. Jim knows what it takes as he did the job - and did it well - for six years. Jim also assisted your Secretary in understanding and interpreting the interface between the pilot’s flight log and her Dad’s mission diary. Thanks to Jim for helping to fill in some gaps.

Bill Perkins, 63rd Squadron, wrote that he is still working to get his fellow veterans’ bios recorded at the WWII Memorial Registry. He was having an access problem with the website; hopefully, he’s worked through that as of this date. He also passed on “Good wishes to all”.

Frank Hohmann, 65th and 403rd Squadrons, let your Secretary know that he found the last newsletter quite enjoyable and also slightly easier to read, possibly because it came to him ‘VFR direct’ as an email attachment. He also stated that I should just ‘tell us old guys to make it a habit to look in Ken’s Men (website) every once in a while’. Frank doesn’t expect he’ll make it to the reunion, but he is already looking forward to reading all about it in the October newsletter.

Along with Jim Cherkauer, many thanks to Jim Dieffenderfer, Wade Kehr, Bob Cooper, John Taylor, Bill Jobe and others who were instrumental these last several months in helping your Secretary to answer questions that came in either to the Ken’s Men website, 43rd Gmail, or directly to your Secretary’s email. My thanks to all for your willingness to assist.

Born Oct. 12, 1915, in Cumberland, Mr. Minnick was the son of the late Otis Minnick and Sarah (Hughes) Minnick. Besides his wife, he was preceeded in death by a daughter, Karen Minnick Benson; his brothers, Clarence “Tuffy” Minnick; Walter “Fish” Minnick; and Harvey Minnick; his sisters, Lela “Sally” Boyd Van Lew “Mickey” Ethington, and Hazel Wretchford Minnick, mother of his daughters.

Mr. Minnick served as a medic in the South Pacific during World War II. He was a member of the 43rd Bomb Group of the 5th Army Air Corps. As anyone who knew Moose will tell you, he loved to talk about his years served during World War II. He was transported to the war zone by a British warship and swore he “ate mutton about every day,” and would not eat lamb of any variety for the rest of his life.

The Bomb Group held a reunion each year, and he looked forward to gathering with old friends at different U.S. Air Force Bases.

He was an avid reader and a member of the Allegany County Bird Club, and until only recently was active in his church, the Winifred Road Church of Christ. He looked forward to Sunday services and to greeting all the parishioners and his buddy, Carl Eckard, who always gave him a military salute. He was a life member of the National Rifle Association, and charter member of the Bowman’s Addition Fire Department. He was also a member for many years of the Knights of Pythias, The Moose Lodge 271, The V.F.W. and The American Legion.

He eagerly awaited the Times News each day to read Mike Burke’s sports column, and then work the daily crossword puzzle. He would spend hours on his porch in summer and dining room window in winter, watching birds and other wild life in his yard.

Mr. Minnick was all about family and greatly enjoyed gatherings to catch up on extended family and to spin a few yarns about the war years. Most family members had heard the stories many times, and could tell you the next line of each.

He was an ironworker by trade, and if work was not available in the area, he would travel to where the work was. His last ironwork in the Cumberland area before retirement was on the Clarysville Bridge, and for many months, he “hung iron,” as he called it, on the Tappan Zee Bridge in New York. He was a graduate of Allegany High School, Class of 1935, where he was a lettered track and soccer star. He kidded his daughters by wearing his Allegany High sweater bearing the large “A” on front, particularly on Turkey Day, as they and their children were all Fort Hill graduates and followers. On his last birthday, he sported a tee saying “Blue all the way through” just to aggravate them. He thoroughly enjoyed the sports activities of his grandchildren and great-grandchildren, and attended many of them until the last several years. He was always proud of their many academic achievements.

Moose is survived by his sisters, Annetta Lusiak, Sycamore, Ill., and June Phillips, Cumberland; and his daughters, Marla Gornall and husband, Bob, Sally Jo Mitchell and husband, Mike, Cumberland. He also leaves behind his grandchildren, Lisa Krampf, Morehead City, N.C., Jonna Roy and husband, Brian, Raleigh, N.C., and Davida Lawrence and Diana Henry and husband Mike, Gettysburg, Pa., Sean Harper and wife, Mina, Andi Harper, Tara Rowley and husband, Trinity, all of Cumberland, and his great-grandchildren, Andrew Harper, currently serving in the United States Navy, Jacob, and Trey Harper, Cameron Roy, Emma Rowley, Aidan Harper, Ezra and Zephaniah Harper, Richard Jones and wife, Adria, Brandon and Nikki Lawrence, Karen and Joshua Henry, and a great-great-granddaughter, Alice Jones; and a very special granddaughter, Maria Tozzi Harper.

... Interment will be in the Maryland Veterans Cemetery at Rocky Gap.

We thank God for our greatest blessing, “our Dad!” — Marla and Sally Jo...

Editor’s Note: Paul J Cascio Jr, who passed away in 2007, was the radio operator on B-17E 41-9207, Texas #6, which was shot down on 1 June 1943. Paul was captured and remained a Prisoner of War for 27 months before being liberated in September 1945.

LOOKING FOR LOST CREWMATES

Pat Bezdek wrote to your Secretary wondering if anyone might have any recollection of her father, Jack Thomas Owings, from Springfield Missouri. Jack was a waist gunner in the 64th Squadron during the timeframe August 1944 to December 1945 and passed away in 2007.

Pat knows that her Dad was on Ie Shima when the Japanese surrendered, but has very little additional information. She is putting together a Time Capsule submission to honor her Dad’s service with the 43rd, but is hopeful that someone might be able to fill in some of the gaps in her knowledge of her father’s military service. If you have any recollection of Jack Owings, you can reach Pat at pbezdek@prodigy.net or call her at 417-888-3003.

Steve Miller, son of Sidney Miller, 65th Squadron, has recently been in touch with Robert ‘Jeep’ McKechnie, 65th tail gunner. Steve would like to know if anyone else has any remembrances regarding his father or his father’s crew (see photo and names below). If you can provide any information, please contact Steve at parklandian1@aol.com or give him a call at ‘nine five four - seven seven eight - four eight one one’.

No matter how you say it, the time is NOW to make your contribution to the Time Capsule - we very much want every Ken’s Men possible to be honored and remembered in this way as part of our recognizing the 75th Anniversary of the Activation of the 43rd Bomb Group at Langley Field, Virginia.

At this year’s reunion, September 2d - September 5th in Hampton, VA, the 43rd will be loading a Time Capsule which is to be opened 75 years from now. Any member of the 43rd, or a friend or family member, can place items that you believe will help the historians of the future better understand the Ken’s Men story.

Items you might submit are written memoirs, personal letters, squadron patches, pictures, diaries, and other artifacts; though you can contribute originals, we would be happy with copies or scanned images as well. Items will be inventoried and photographed or scanned before being sealed in the Time Capsule.

Special thanks again to Tracy Tucciarone who, along with managing the entire Ken’s Men website, continues to keep the Time Capsule approved postings up to date. See those and other details at http://www.kensmen.com/timecapsule.html

Time is short! Don’t let a Ken’s Men go unrecognized - You can email to secretary43bgroup@gmail.com with any questions or to submit items electronically. Please have your items to the Secretary not later than 15 August so she can scan, print, record and box as necessary. The Time Capsule Submission Form is on the website and at the back of this newsletter.

BOOK RECOMMENDATION
FINISH FORTY AND HOME  BY PHIL SCEARCE

The Untold World War II Story of B-24s in the Pacific

(from the flap)
“During the early years of World War II in the Pacific theatre, against overwhelming odds, young American airmen flew the longest and most perilous bombing missions of the war. They faced determined Japanese pilots without fighter escort, relentless anti-aircraft fire with no deviations from target, and thousands of miles of over-water flying with no alternative landing sites.

Finish Forty and Home, by Phil Scearce, is the true story of the men and missions of the 11th Bombardment Group as it fought alone and unheralded in the South Central Pacific, while America had its eyes on the war in Europe. The book opens with Sgt. Herman Scearce, the author’s father, lying about his age to join the Army Air Corps at 16. The narrative follows Scearce through training and into combat with his new crewmates, including pilot Lt. Joe Deasy, whose last-minute transfer from training duty thrusts the new crew into the squadron commander’s role.

After bombing Nauru, the squadron moves on to bomb Wake Island, Tarawa, and finally Iwo Jima. These missions bring American forces closer and closer to the Japanese home islands and precede the critical American invasions of Tarawa and Iwo Jima. The 42nd Squadron’s losses through 1943 were staggering: 50 out of 110 airmen killed.

Phil Scearce explores the context of the war and sets the stage for these daring missions, revealing the motivations of the men who flew them: to finish forty combat missions and make it home again. He based his story upon substantial research at the Air Force Historical Research Agency and the National Archives, interviews with surviving airmen, and interviews and correspondence with the survivors of men who were lost. His is the first book to document America’s bomber offensive in the early days of the Pacific War.”

Some years ago I became aware of a Japanese flag among the possessions of my Grandad, Paul L. Nichols. I had never seen this flag before but my Mom had actually taken it to school as a young girl as a "Show and Tell" item. After Grandad passed away last August, I began sorting through his items in order to help my own grief process, to better understand such a complex man, and to decide how best to share his collections. I became curious about this unique flag, made of silk, covered in Japanese writing, punctured with holes and spattered with what appeared to be blood. Grandad had referred to this flag in his War memoir "My Lucky Dice" as a 'Japanese Combat Flag covered with graffiti with a two inch shell hole in it’ and said he had traded a Japanese rifle he had obtained for it, making an exchange with a soldier he met while stationed in Leyte.

I began my search for information and one thing led to another. I discovered that the flag was not a battle flag as Grandad believed, but actually a prayer or "Good Luck" flag called a Yosegaki Hinomaru, signed by a Japanese soldier’s friends and family to send him with their well wishes and prayers as he deployed. Each Japanese soldier would carry their flag with them everywhere, folded neatly in the breast pocket, in the belief that it embodied the spirits of his loved ones. These flags became favored souvenirs of US Soldiers due to their portability and availability.

Further research led me to a non-profit organization called OBON 2015, headed up by a husband and wife team who are devoted to researching the writing on surrendered Yosegaki Hinomaru flags to discover the soldier’s name and geographical origins and then facilitate the return of flags to surviving family members. Their hope in doing this is to foster peace and promote healing, with a special focus on this year - the 70th Anniversary of the end of the War.

After researching OBON 2015 and familiarizing myself with their policies, I gathered our family and explained the special significance of the flag. We unanimously decided to return the flag to Japan, believing that it should be with the Japanese family, if they could be found. We felt that we had plenty of mementos to remember Grandad by that spoke to us more personally. We also felt it very likely that the Japanese soldier’s family might not have anything of his, and it rightly belonged to them. Any monetary worth is far outweighed by the significance of the flag to the Japanese people.

With my family’s support, I contacted Rex and Keiko Ziak with OBON 2015. They explained to me and my parents the process and how they diligently research each flag through a panel of language experts based in Japan, looking for clues to the owner and his origins. The Japanese characters in use at the time are sometimes difficult to interpret. They also explained their policy of requiring that the flag be unconditionally surrendered and in their physical possession before they start the research process as there have been instances of flags being offered but then withdrawn, disappointing the Japanese family. We felt very comfortable with proceeding after this call and I prepared the flag to make its return home. I enclosed several pictures of Grandad during the War years as well as more recent ones, pictures of our family, and a brief description of how he came about having the flag and our hopes for the family in returning it.

When surrendering the flag to OBON 2015, we chose to receive updates as the researchers made discoveries, eagerly anticipating any information they could uncover. By mid April we knew not only the Soldier’s name and hometown, but OBON had actually spoken to his sole surviving family member, a younger sister. She related how this young man was drafted at the age of 15 years, leaving his widowed mother and two younger sisters. The mother passed away six years ago at the age of 100, followed by the other sister. The surviving sister is in her 80’s now and had nothing to remember her brother by, so is very pleased to be receiving his flag. Rather than simply have it mailed to her, she has requested a Ceremonial return in their local Shrine performed by a Priest. Rex and Keiko will travel to Japan this summer and hand deliver our flag as they are returning 70 flags to commemorate this 70th anniversary. The returning ceremony for our flag is scheduled for August 10th. The significance of that week in August - 70 years after the bombings of Hiroshima and Nagasaki - seems to really bring this whole process full circle.

Our family also participated in the filming of a Japanese documentary being produced by NTV (their equivalent of CNN) detailing the return of these flags to Japan and the work of OBON 2015, which is slated to air in August. My mother and I were interviewed and video was taken of the flag as well as Grandad’s book, photos, and other items. I’d like to think he would be pleased to know how we've honored him in all of this, and how his keeping the flag safe for all of these years can now, not only bring healing and peace to the Japanese people, but also bring awareness of this cause to others who may have flags in their possession. Our hope is that many more flags will be returned to their rightful owners before all those who remember from both sides of the War are gone. Anyone wishing to contact Rex and Kelko regarding returning a flag may visit their website at http://obon2015.com/english/ which details the process and also gives more information about the significance of the flags. We have found them to be extremely helpful and professional in all of our dealings with them and can recommend them without hesitation.

Thank you and God bless you all!

NEW BOOK TO BE RELEASED
A Note from Michael Musumeci

Hi 43rd Bomb Group Association members,

Just wanted to advise all members that the book titled "Aircraft Crashes of Northern Queensland Australia 1943 - 1945" is soon to be released. It is hoped that books will be available in late July 2015.

Following on from my first book titled "Iron Range Air Base - Carved in the Cape York Jungle 1941-1945", this book is dedicated to a collection of 50 compelling aircraft crashes and mishaps historically documented that occurred throughout Far North Queensland, Australia during World War II. The compilation gives a rare insight into researched documents, official reports, witness statements, veterans recollections, memories, family histories and information from descendants of the lost. Also included are a number of rare photographs of the aircraft and of those who lost their lives in these tragic circumstances. Many of these photographs, found in family homes, have never been released.

The severe loss of so many, documented in this book, is a sheer tragedy to so many generations. Every effort has been made to ensure their memories live on for future generations, to ensure the Far North Queensland history is never forgotten and that all are remembered with the utmost of honour, respect and dignity. For they all paid the supreme sacrifice for our enduring freedom. They will be forever remembered.

Lt Ervin Miskin Crew

Wade Kehr, 403rd Squadron, was happy to respond to questions posed by Michael Musumeci regarding the Lt Miskin crew; they are posed in the image below in front of Stuggots 1st. Three of these men (names in BOLD) were later lost in the crash of Pickled Peach, 42-73483.

Per Wade, although the crew posed in front of this aircraft, he has no record of having flown any missions in it and is not sure that Stuggots 1st was assigned to the 403rd. If anyone has information on Stuggots 1st, to include full tail number and Squadron, please send a note to your Secretary.

LOOKING FOR A FULL TAIL NUMBER, AIRCRAFT #358

Tom Smith, nephew of Francis J ‘Buddy’ Smith, 65th Squadron, has been sharing emails with your Editor regarding his Uncle and the 18 May ’45 incident in which he was killed in action. The pilot was Lt James J Franklin and the aircraft was #358.

We are hoping someone can contact us with a full tail number for that aircraft, possibly recorded in a diary or logbook.
“Brig. Gen. Kenneth Newton Walker, one of the architects of the prewar plan for strategic air war in Europe, and commanding general Fifth Bomber Command, went missing in action on January 5th, 1943, on an unescorted daylight bombing mission to Rabaul, New Britain. The B–17F in which the general flew, Walker, and the crew have never been found. He remains one of the highest ranking unrecovered officers lost in air combat in World War II...

Most military historians have heard of the Battle of the Bismarck Sea and understand that it was seminal event in the history of air power. Most air power historians are aware of the airlift of Australian troops to Wau, New Guinea, which helped turn back a Japanese offensive in early 1943. General Walker’s January 1943 mission to Rabaul targeted a Japanese convoy prior to the one in the Bismarck Sea Battle, was the first of a series of operations that thinned out Japanese reinforcements so that they were unsuccessful against Wau, led to the Bismarck Sea Battle, and, was part of turning the tide in the Pacific. The importance of action against the first Lae convoy and accurate details of Walker’s mission are hard to find in published accounts that cover events of this period...

General George C. Kenney, Allied air commander and commanding general of the U.S. Fifth Air Force, laid plans to intercept and wreck the predicted convoy. He ordered a brief stand down from bomber operations to provide for rest and maintenance of his heavy bomber force. He ordered General Walker, his bomber commander, to prepare a maximum effort to strike Rabaul shipping on the morning the convoy was to sail. A coordinated strike with B–17s and B–24s flying from Port Moresby with another force of B–24s flying from Australia totaling more than twenty bombers would be the largest force ever to hit Rabaul in daylight. In recent months the Fifth Air Force had avoided attacks on Rabaul in full daylight. Most attacks took place at night with an occasional bomber completing its attack after dawn. Kenney directed that the bombers strike in the early morning...

But things did not go as directed. Walker disagreed with Kenney about an early morning attack. That would require a night take off and also make it unlikely his bomber force would arrive over the target in a compact formation. Walker ordered an attack for midday and, as he had done before, further ignored Kenney’s wishes by going on the mission himself. The B–24s flying from Iron Range, Australia never made the trip due to bad weather. A small advance force of B–17s detailed for an airfield attack preceded the main force. The main force headed toward Rabaul in a formation consisting of six B–17s of the 43rd BG and six B–24s of the 90th BG. The B–17s carried 500-lb. bombs and the B–24s one thousand pounders...

Available records are far from comprehensive but it is certain that the American bombers never fully reformed in a 12-plane formation and it is also certain the lead bomber, Walker’s was not the first to leave the target area. Consistent with Nagai’s Japanese press report and American accounts at least Walker’s B–17 and some others lagged behind the main formation. Reports indicate a B–17 circled the harbor at lower than attack altitude before attempting to rejoin the formation. This was probably Walker’s bomber observing and photographing bombing results. Some accounts suggest Walker’s bomber had been damaged by AA fire but there is no way to verify this and the delayed AA reaction makes it less than likely. Walker’s bomber may have appeared in distress merely because it was the lead bomber but left the target below and behind the other bombers...

The Japanese did not get away unscathed... The American bombers did not get away unscathed either. The B–17F with General Walker, Maj. Jack Bleasdale, executive officer of the 43rd BG, and pilot Major Allen Lindberg, commander of the 64th BS on board was last seen entering clouds pursued by Japanese fighters with an engine on fire. The B–17, No. 41-24458 named San Antonio Rose, never returned and its wreckage and the body of General Walker have never been found. Captured documents and other information indicate that Bleasdale and co-pilot Capt. Benton Daniel bailed out inland from Wide Bay, were eventually captured but their subsequent fate is unknown and they were unlikely to have survived captivity. Most of the bombers had received some hits from the reportedly “inexperienced” and uneager attacks. At least one badly damaged bomber was in distress as it made the homeward flight.”

Special thanks to Douglas Walker, son of BrigGen Kenneth Walker, for this contribution. Please read the full article, to include insights on where B-17 41-24458, San Antonio Rose, and its crew may have crashed: http://www.kennethnwalker.org/pdf/air-power-history-walker.pdf

The Newsletter Editor for the illustrious Jolly Rogers has agreed to place the picture on the left in their newsletter, hoping to elicit some memories of rivalry on the ground coupled with teamwork in the air.

Your Secretary would like to hear from our veteran Ken’s Men - do you remember this ‘billboard’? And, might there have been some sort of retaliatory action taken by the men of the 43rd BG?

64TH BOMB SQDN (H) HONOR ROLL

This picture depicts SSgt Jack Matisoff, 64th Squadron, in front of the 64th Squadron’s Honor Roll sign. A zoom-in of this photo shows that the 50 names listed are of men from the 64th lost between Dec 1942 and April 1943. The picture was taken in the summer or fall of 1943, after SSgt Matisoff was released from the hospital following the crash of B-17 41-24383 in January of that year. In that crash, Jack’s good friend, MSgt Meyer Levin, was killed along with five other men, all of them listed on this Honor Roll.

Of note, the names appear to reflect only combat losses; two men from the 64th were lost in a C-47 crash and another drowned (a MSgt no less), all during this period. They are not listed.

No further list with the names of additional casualties occurring after April 1943 seems to have existed. After recently emailing with a few 64th Squadron veterans, they concluded that continuing with this Honor Roll would have been detrimental to morale as they’d already lost so many men in only four short months.

If you remember this sign or possibly took a photo yourself, please let us know.
43rd Bomb Group - Prisoners of War

Your Secretary did some rather quick online research regarding men from the 43rd who may have been held as prisoners of war. Based on a look across seven different online sites, as many as 28 men from the 43rd have some online source showing potential time in captivity. Four of the sites queried look to have pulled their data from the same sources (or even from each other); those four sites— one of which is the National Archives and Records Administration— have documented 10 of the 43rd’s men as POWs as of this date; these names are in RED.

The 8 men noted as having survived captivity are since deceased.

Based on this online research, all men from the 43rd appear to have been taken into captivity during a single six month period, between 5 January 1943 and 26 June 1943. Reasons for men being taken into captivity during these specific six months and, possibly, ONLY during these six months, might include that New Britain - where many missions were during this time - was under complete Japanese control and they likely had help from residents in finding downed airmen. Additionally, missions over land provided greater opportunity for survival (and potential capture) after bailing or ditching.

Your Secretary would appreciate any thoughts or remembrances, especially from our Veterans, regarding prisoners of war from the 43rd Bomb Group.

The Booklet, “FALL-IN” — Greetings to THE MEN WHO SERVE TODAY from your COMRADES OF 1917 and 1918. Presented by the AMERICAN LEGION

An excerpt from the Foreword of FALL-IN:

“This booklet could properly be titled “Letters from a soldier father to his soldier son.” It is a welcome to comradeship from the members of the American Legion to those young men who are just now entering upon the greatest experience of their lives. They have become Service Men in the Armed Forces of the United States. ...

Members of The American Legion, without exception, wore the uniform of the United States with outstanding honor during the Great War, now sometimes termed World War I. They were honorably discharged after the emergency but they have never ceased to serve their country. They have displayed great interest in the problems of their country; they have manifested that interest at all times by serving in peace as they served in war. ...

But now we are at war. Our Nation has been attacked and what was not accomplished toward the building of an adequate national defense is water over the dam. We are starting NOW to Build - to Build for the preservation of Freedom and the Homes we love. ...

For these reasons we offer you this information culled from our own memorable experiences of 23 years ago.”

B-10 JACKET, 65th SQUADRON

Though he has no relatives who served with the 43rd, Matthew Morlok graciously shared this find with your Secretary through the Ken’s Men website. “I actually picked up the jacket, a B-10 Jacket, at an auction in 2012. It has been hanging in my collection since then, but I recently decided to ‘Get it out there’ for others to see! I think it is absolutely beautiful, even in its worn-out & salty condition.

From what I have gathered, the B-10 was the replacement for the leather jackets, although both were widely used during WW2, with the cloth B-10 being less common.”

Matthew would love to hear from any of our veterans who might remember this style jacket or have one of their own that they’d like to show off. You can reach Matthew at moto-stella@hotmail.com

Fort Scott National Cemetery is located on the outskirts of the city of Fort Scott, KS, midway between Fort Leavenworth, KS, and Fort Gibson, OK, on the route historically known as the Military Road. The fort was established in 1842 and named for Lieutenant General Winfield Scott, then General-in-Chief of the U.S. Army. The fort’s primary purpose was to maintain a three-way peace among Native American tribes forcibly relocated from Florida and the East, local tribes, and incoming white settlers. Troops guarded caravans on the Santa Fe Trail and patrolled the frontier territory.

By 1853, boundaries of the American frontier extended farther west and the need for a military garrison at Fort Scott diminished...

With the outbreak of the Civil War, Fort Scott was rebuilt and it once again became an important military post. The fort served as a concentration center for troops and a large storage facility for supplies intended for the use of Union soldiers fighting in the South. The 1st Kansas Colored Infantry, one of the Union Army’s African-American regiments, was assigned to Fort Scott in 1863. The unit took part in five engagements and suffered more casualties than any other Kansas regiment. For a short period after the Civil War, the Army continued to use the fort as a base to monitor and handle the movements of displaced Native Americans to the western territories. However, as new military posts were established farther west, Fort Scott was again abandoned in 1873--this time permanently.

During the 1840s, the Army established a cemetery on the west side of town to accommodate the burial of soldiers who died while stationed at the Fort Scott garrison. In 1861, town officers and citizens of Fort Scott purchased approximately four acres southeast of the old post for use as a community burying ground. After the start of the Civil War, the new cemetery was used for the interment of soldiers stationed at Fort Scott. When Congress approved the creation of national cemeteries in 1862, the cemetery became one of 14 national cemeteries to be designated or established as such that year. On Nov. 15, 1862, the cemetery and an adjoining tract were designated as Fort Scott National Cemetery.

After the war’s end in 1865, the remains of those buried in the old military cemetery, as well as other soldiers buried in the vicinity, in Missouri and Kansas, were re-interred at Fort Scott National Cemetery. Following the close of the Indian Wars and resettlement of Native Americans, the Army closed or consolidated many of its small military outposts in the West. As a result, between 1885 and 1907, the federal government vacated numerous military post cemeteries, such as Fort Lincoln, Kansas, and re-interred the remains at Fort Scott National Cemetery.

Eugene Fitch Ware, a noted Kansas poet, is buried in Grave 1 in the heart-shaped section of the cemetery. Ware served in the 7th Iowa Cavalry during the Civil War and was based at Ft. Scott. Also interred at Fort Scott National Cemetery are the remains of 16 Native American soldiers—all privates in the Indian Regiments of the Union Army who served as invaluable scouts.

Fort Scott National Cemetery was listed on the National Register of Historic Places in 1999.”
